COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES OF SPRING MILLS HIGH SCHOOL A GRAND SUCCESS

Class of Eight in Gregg Township's First Commencement—Grange Hall Filled to Overflowing—Dr. Klein Delivers Grand Address.

Filled to overflowing with an orderly and interested crowd which had assembled from far and near, the Grange hall at Spring Mills was the scene of the first commencement of the Spring Mills High School of Gregg Township, on Tuesday night, April 7, at which time a class of eight, four young ladies and four young men, was graduated. This is the first occasion of this celebration in Spring Mills. The program rendered was instructive throughout and showed much effort in preparation by all the particip ants

THE GRADUATING CLASS.

The hall was tastefully decorated with national flags and buntings, while the platform was framed with green and potted plants, and for a background college and school pennants blended their colors.

The class consists of Misses Jennie Horner Bartges, Cora Minerva Corman, Katie Claire McCool, Helen Rosena Rishel; and Messrs. Eugene Titus Gramley, John Wilson Corman, Wiley Christie Musser, and William Horace Hosterman. The class officers were: E. T. Gramley, president; J. W. Corman, secretary; Helen R. Rishel, vice president; W. C. Musser, treasurer.

The meeting was opened by an instrumental duet, very effectively rendered by Mrs. Frank Fisher and Miss Lola Ulrich of Penn Hall, in whose care the musical numbers of the program were placed. An especially appropriate and effective selection was a vocal solo, "Abide With Me," rendered by Miss Ulrich.

Rev. R. Raymond Jones, pastor of the Reformed church, then invoked the blessing of our Heavenly Father.

Miss Bartges' essay on the "Natural Phenomena of Gregg Township," presented a brief view of the beauties, curiosities, and resources of Gregg township. It showed careful preparation and original effort.

Mr. Corman, in his essay of "Notable Centre Countians," gave those present an inspiration to greater effort by calling attention to such men as Curtin, Hastings and Beaver, who coming from this county enrolled their names on history's pages. It was a very carefully thought out paper.

Miss Corman showed by her grasp of facts a serious study of her subject, "The Panama Canal." More particularly did she dwell on its significance in the development of the world's history.

Mr. Gramley brought his subject home to the people in the essay, "Centralized Education and You," by showing the meaning, purpose and scope of a consolidated school and comparing the cost of administration with the present cost, greatly disadvantaging the latter. It was based on facts and figures and showed a careful study of actual conditions.

Miss McCool had chosen as a subject for her essay one that touched the hearts of the people, "Dr. Wolfe—An Appreciation," showing the divinity which inspired Dr. Wolfe's whole life and acknowledging the great debt which this community owes to him. She closed with a fitting tribute to his noble life and work.

"Sermons from Stones," by Mr Hosterman, was what might be called lessons by the way. He set forth the many lessons which we may learn from the farmer. The farmer is a priest; the field is his altar; and supplying the world with food his sacrificial service, was the burden of his message. It had a truly sympathetic estimate of the place of the farmer in society.

Miss Rishel, while not giving a temperance talk, yet she showed the reasons for the downfall of the liquor traffic, in her essay, "A Deposed King—Why?" She showed, that whereas a century ago alcohol was everywhere present and essential, now it is being hounded by all kinds, classes and conditions of men. It was an inspiring essay.

The last essay on the program showed a careful study of actual conditions in rural education all over the United States and the responsibility which is placed on the country school by the community. This was the essay entitled "The Rural Schools and the Country Community," by Mr. Musser.

The commencement oration was delivered by Dr. H. M. J. Klein of Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster. The burden of his message was set forth in one question, "Was it worth while?" That is, does the completion of a course of study make due return for the sacrifices made in order that it might be accomplished. As an answer he showed that there are four things to be striven for. First to have, that is, to gather one's own share of this world's treasures; second, to know that is, learn from books and trees and life, never cease in one's efforts for a higher and broader education; third, to do, for by man's deeds alone is he remembered and these three are perfectly accomplished in the fourth, to be, that is in our own characters, which should be patterned after Jesus Christ the perfect character. Character is the golden gate to true success and happiness, and good characters repay a thousand fold all the sacrifices of time, money, convenience and ease.

Dr. Klein's address was pleasing and heart reaching and will prove a source of inspiration to the class, to whom his message was addressed.

Prof. Jones, as a token of his appreciation of the friendship which his pupils and patrons have manifested toward him, presented a banner bearing the name "Spring Mills High School" and the motto "Varitas, honor, et scientia." Eugene Gramley responded to the presentation, accepting the banner in the name of the school and thanking the principal for his thought and care for the school. In the absence of the president of the board, Prof. Jones, with a few well chosen words, presented the diplomas to the members of the class. Immediately after the presentation of diplomas, Rev. Jones pronounced the benediction.

The audience in great part, with one accord then moved forward to congratulate all the participants of the program and express their congratulations and good wishes to the graduates.

ALTOONA BANDIT ESCAPES.

Greasing His Body With Butter, the Dare Devil Squeezes Through Six-inch Window in Cell.

Frank G. Hohl is again at large as a result of an almost incredible escape from the Hollidaysburg jail Saturday night. Stripping himself of all clothing and applying butter to his body he wriggled through a six-inch window in his cell and by means of a rope made from bed clothing lowered himself to the ground and made good his escape. It was fully five hours until his absence from the jail was discovered, in which time the bandit placed many miles between the jail and himself. It is supposed that an automobile was in waiting for the robber, and if such was the case he no doubt was enjoying the scenery of Canada before the jail officials became cognizant of his escape.

Killed Elk in Wheat Field.

Barney Eisenhuth appeared before 'Squire F. P. Musser and made information against his brother, Emanuel Eisenhuth of High Valley, charging him with shooting an elk. A warrant was placed in the hands of Constable J. H. Maize, who arrested Eisenhuth and took him before the justice, where he pleaded guilty and was fined $200 The fine was promptly paid. Mr Eisenhuth says the elk was in his grain field and rather than have his grain destroyed he shot it.

House Passes a New Pension Bill.

Pensions for widows and minor children of officers and men who served in the Spanish war, the Philippine insurrection and the Boxer uprising in China are authorized by a bill which passed the house by a vote of 276 to 54.

The bill grants $12 monthly to the widow of an honorably discharged soldier or sailor and $2 monthly for each child under sixteen years of age. There are about 4,000 such widows, and it is estimated that an appropriation of $2,500 000 will be required to pay the pensions.

Large Enrollment at Spring Mills Normal.

The Spring Mills Normal opened Monday with an enrollment of fifty-two, the largest in a number of years. Prof. W. R. Jones, the principal, is assisted in the work by his brother, Victor H. Jones, A. B., a graduate of Franklin and Marshall, and a student at the Theological Seminary at Lancaster.

LOCALS

Eugene Simkins of Pittsburgh was the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Simkins, at the Presbyterian Manse from Friday until Sunday.

Mrs. G O. Benner, from Saturday until Monday, was with her father, John A. Miles, at Martha, who suffered slightly for a few days from what was supposed to be a light paralytic stroke.

Charles E. Stover came from Jacksonville, Florida, Saturday and is at the home of his sister, Mrs. John Durst, near Old Fort. Mr. Stover is a mail clerk, on the extra list, and his duties take him on the waters part of the time. At such times his route is between Miami, Florida, and Cuba. He intends to remain in Central Pennsylvania until September when he will again return to the sunny peninsula.

On Easter morning Mrs. Howard Gregg died at her home in Lewistown. She was aged twenty-eight years, and before marriage was Miss Pearl Edith Knoffsinger, a daughte. of John Knoffsinger of Pleasant Gap, now deceased. Her mother later married John Mulfinger of Pleasant Gap, and survives, as do also four small children.

DEDICATION OF GRANGE HALL.

Illustrated Unwritten Work and Talk on Injustice of Present Tax System.

In giving an account of the dedication of the Bald Eagle Grange, Miss Belle Miller, the lecturer, through the Tyrone Herald, gave this expression:

The memories of Saturday, April 4, will long linger in the hearts of those who attended the dedication of the Bald Eagle Grange Hall. Hon. Leonard Rhone of Centre Hall, who was Master of the State Grange for eighteen years, and who is "a man full of years and crowned with honor," arrived on the 10:16 a. m. train. Henry Lewis, a preminent member of the grange, met him at the train and conveyed him to the hall where members of the Bald Eagle Grange and surrounding grangers received him with hearty greetings, after which Mr. Rhone presided over a preliminary meeting, whose object was the presenting of the unwritten work of the order by the distinguished visitor who annually presents the unwritten work before the State Grange. The presentation of this work was done in a plain, forceful and graceful manner.

Following the unwritten work were words of encouragement and inspiration. He spoke of the uplift that a good working grange is to any community, and touched on the training received in connection with grange work that may be useful in later life. He paid a high tribute to the tillers of the soil by saying that we have never had a famine in America. The meeting adjourned at 12 m.

The ladies then spread a bountiful dinner. Perhaps one of the best features of the dinner was the appetite which every one of the fifty brought with them and which no doubt was whetted with early hurried breakfasts and long drives through the frosty air. But the ladies were equal to the demand and after all had eaten, the supply was unexhausted.

Next came the dedicatory ceremony, which was beautiful and impressive and was conducted by H. S. Weriz of Alleghany grange, Duncansville, in his habitually dignified and masterly manner. He closed his work with words of congratulation and admonition, emphasizing the thought that the grange should never let discord cross its threshold. Expressions of congratulation and enjoyment of the entire exercises were tendered by Messrs. Peck, Chronister, Miller, Tate and Eaves.

Those present from other granges were: Mr. and Mrs Frank Peck, Warrior's Mark grange; Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Miller, T. L. Coleman and Wallace Stryker, Sinking Valley grange; Mr. and Mrs. Arch Irvin, Mr. Eves, Mrs. Howard, Mrs. Wm. Miller, Stormstown grange; Mr. Chronister, Port Matilda grange; and Messrs. Wertz and Tate, Alleghany grange.

The concluding number of the program was a talk by Mr. Rhone in which he spoke of the injustice done farmers by our present system of taxation, also of the great issues that have been decided by the grange, such as rural delivery, parcel post, and defeat of the fifty million loan for road purposes.

The beautiful thoughts clothed in simple language and the charming personality of Mr. Rhone, the Grand Man, shall be a lingering benediction for all time.

Protect the Elk.

The elk must have better protection if the state expects to grow them in Pennsylvania. A half dozen or more of the elk placed in Centre and Clinton counties have been killed by hunters who have no regard for the game laws. In most of the cases the $200 fine was paid, the half of which was repaid to the informant, who was either a close friend or a near relative. The carcass of an elk is worth much more than the half of the fine, and this is an incentive to kill elk when an opportunity presents itself. The killing of two elk in the mountains below Coburn, and the one slaughtered near Milroy, forcibly illustrate this.

As a remedy for the illegal killing of elk and deer, the Reporter suggests that the fine be doubled, that one-fourth go to the informant, and that the violator be debarred from hunting all protected game.

The elk placed in the mountains below Coburn have been seen recently, and are looking very fair. The baby elk was not observed, and it is presumed that it was either killed or died from exposure, or it may have been browsing at a distance from the herd.

DEATHS.

Mrs. Edwin Frank died at her home in Rebersburg Saturday morning at five o'clock, of illness incident to childbirth. Funeral services were held Monday morning in the Evangelical church, Rev. B. F. Rumberger of the Evangelical church, and Rev. A. G. Stauffer of the Reformed church, officiating. Interment in the Rebersburg cemetery.

At the time of her untimely death Mrs. Frank was thirty-six years of age. She is survived by her husband and the following children: Russell, Helen, and Mary, at home; Martha of Sugar Valley, who will hereafter remain at home. The five-day old babe also survives and is in a healthy, growing condition. Two children preceded their mother to the grave.

Her father, Harvey Zellers, is living at Tylersville, and one brother, John Zellers, is among the surviving members.

Mrs. Susan Linn Snyder, widow of the late Henry A. Snyder, of Blanchard, died after a week's illness of pneumonia. Mrs. Snyder had closed her home in Blanchard and was spending the winter with her daughters in State College, being at the time of her death about seventy-three years old. She had been a resident pratically all her lifetime in Bald Eagle Valley, and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Linn. She was a highly esteemed woman and a faithful member of the Methodist church. Her husband died a few years ago. She leaves four children: Harry, of Chicago; Maude, wife of Charles K. Foster; Mabel, wife of Prof. Milton McDowell; and Cora, all three living in State College. These brothers and sisters are also left: James A., F. Mills, J. Brittain, all of Beech Creek township; Thomas, of Jersey Shore; Mrs. Amanda Miller, West Bay City, Michigan, and Mrs. E. K. Parsons, Lock Haven.

Mrs. Isabel Harvey Cole passed away at the Bellefonte hospital. Her death was the result of convulsions following childbirth. Mrs. Cole was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin M. Harvey of State College and was born near Milesburg on March 17, 1887. February 23, 1912, she was married to Robert Cole, Jr., son of Robert Cole, Sr., of Bellefonte. Funeral services were held at the home of the parents and were conducted by Rev. Linkletter, pastor of the Howard Disciple church of which denomination the deceased was a member. The body was interred in the Pine Hall cemetery. Mrs. Cole is survived by her parents, her husband, and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. C. A. Leathers, Howard; Miss Kathryn, Joseph W., Oscar C. and J. Fred Harvey, all of State College.

Daniel Garner, a well known Ferguson township Granger, died at the home in which he began housekeeping directly after his marriage, of acute cerebitis. He was aged fifty-two years and was a son of William and Sarah Bloom Garner. In the spring of 1891 he was married to Miss Anna Neidigh, who with three children, Mrs. Drucilla Cori, Misses Edna and Luella, survives. Funeral services were held at his late home Thursday of last week, Rev. S. C. Stover officiating.

Philipsburg mourns the death of Miss Gertrude Clarissa Mayes which occurred Wednesday of last week. She died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Frank Beck, where she lived since the death of her parents. Miss Mayes had been suffering from Bright's disease for some time, and for the past four weeks was confined to her bed. Three sisters and a brother survive.

HORSE SALE, APRIL 18TH.

Peachy and Yoder Will Sell Third Car Load of Kansas Horses at Centre Hall.

Saturday, April 18th, 12 o'clock sharp, is the time set for the third horse sale this spring by Messrs. Peachy and Yoder, at Centre Hall. The horses will be here a few days prior to the date of sale, and can be inspected by prospective buyers and any interested in horses.

This express load of horses consists of draft horses and mares in foal, chunks and general purpose horses, and good mules. Pair mare mules four and five years old, weight 2600, and stand sixteen and one-half hands high. These are real mules. The horses are dark bays, grays and blacks, with plenty of shape, style and quality.

These horses were personally selected by Mr. Yoder, who is an expert horseman, and are animals that he can guarantee.

Tomorrow never comes, but the morning after the night before always shows up.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

HAPPENINGS OF LOCAL INTEREST FROM ALL PARTS

Carl Auman was confined to bed on account of sickness for a week or more.

Trout from the state hatcheries were planted in the Seven Mountains streams.

Charles I. Grenoble, Yeagertown's popular jeweler and optician, has purchased the stock and fixtures of a large jewelry store in Lewisburg, and will discontinue the business at Yeagertown and move to Lewisburg about the 1st of May.

Dr. W. H. Schuyler and George L. Goodhart were representatives of Sinking Creek Presbyterian charge at the spring meeting of the Huntingdon Presbytery at State College. The sessions opened Monday evening and continued throughout Tuesday.

Dr. H. M. J. Klein, the speaker at the Spring Mills Commencement Exercises was entertained at the home of his former student, Prof. W. R. Jones, at which time he reviewed old memories with Rev. Jones, since both of them were at the seminary together.

August Glintz, who last winter purchased the Garman House, has assumed personal control of it, and has also been granted a license. The new landlord purchased the fixtures from Mr. Davis, who conducted the house for several years, and as a landlord won many friends and largely increased the patronage of the house.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Stoffett were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Smith in Centre Hall for a few days last week, Mrs. Stoffett being a sister to Mrs. Smith. They came here from Cement, California, where Mr. Stoffett was employed in one of the country's largest cement works. Mr. Stoffett has severed his connection with the firm, and will not return to the west, but is thinking of going into the contracting business, principally with work dealing with the use of concrete.

URGES ENFORCING OF HOUSING LAWS

State Conference Plans to Show Conditions in Cities.

PUBLIC APPROPRIATIONS.

Bureau Would Have Been Organized Long Ago Had An Adequate Sum Been Available In the Appropriation.

(Harrisburg Correspondence.)

Harrisburg. — Pennsylvania's first housing conference ended after taking action to further a propaganda to educate the public to the conditions prevailing in many of the cities and expressing the hope that State and municipal laws governing housing would be enforced. It is probable that as a result of the conference the Bureau of Housing in the Department of Health will be put into operation for a limited period in order to demonstrate what could be done if sufficient funds were voted by the Legislature. This Bureau would have been organized long ago had an adequate sum been available in the appropriation to the State Health Department. One of the practical talks given attracted much attention from the delegates. It was by August Hiller, statistician of the Pittsburgh Board of Education who pointed out that many persons who desired to improve housing conditions were unable to do so because of lack of funds and suggested that the subject of public appropriations to inaugurate better conditions be seriously considered.

House Candidates File Petitions.

Three members of the last House of Representatives filed petitions to be candidates for renomination as follows:

Richard J. Baldwin, Republican, Chadd's Ford, Second Delaware; A. C. Stein, Republican and Washington, Pittsburgh, First Allegheny, and Peter McDermott, Democrat, Hawk's Run, Clearfield.

Other petitions filed for the House included:

AN INSULT TO THE U. S. NAVY

Gunboat Dolphin's Men Arrested at Tampico.

RELEASED ON MAYO'S DEMAND

Apology Acknowledged By Mexico City Is Apprehensive About Admiral's Insistence Upon Salutation Of the Flag.

Mexico City.—The paymaster and a detachment of marine from the United States gunboat Dolphin were arrested by a Mexican officer at Tampico, marched through the streets and, after being held for a time, were released on the demand of Rear-Admiral Mayo.

A launch from the Dolphin, carrying the paymaster and a small detachment of marines, put in at Iturbide bridge, at Tampico. The Americans were after a supply of gasoline. They were in uniform, but unarmed. The launch flew the American flag.

Colonel Hinojosa, commanding a detachment of Mexican Federals, placed the paymaster and his men under arrest, and paraded them through the streets.

Release followed on vigorous representations to the authorities by Admiral Mayo. Gen. Ignacio Zaragoza expressed his regret to the Admiral.

Although President Huerta, in an official statement to Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American Charge d'Affaires, has apologized for the unusual zealousness of the Mexican commander at Tampico, there exists here great uneasiness because Admiral Mayo is reported to have demanded that the Government authorities at Tampico salute the American colors.

President Huerta's statement was as follows:

"In view of the fact that the Charge d'Affaires of the United States hears that the whaleboat carrying the American sailors was flying the flag of his country, an investigation will be made to establish the responsibility of Colonel Hinojosa. In accord with the line of conduct which the Government of Mexico always has followed in fulfillment of its duties of an international character regarding all nations, it deplores what has occurred.

Called Mistake Of Subordinates.

"This case has grown out of nothing more than a mistake of subordinate officials, since the superior in rank of this same official, General Zaragoza, at once proceeded to point out that what had happened was unintentional, and imposed upon Colonel Hinojosa disciplinary punishment, within the faculty of said General Zaragoza.

"If the investigation which is to be made should develop greater responsibility on the part of Colonel Hinojosa, a corresponding penalty will be imposed upon him by the authorities legally competent in the case."

Rear-Admiral Frank F. Fletcher, the ranking admiral of the Gulf, who is now at Vera Cruz, has forwarded to Charge O'Shaughnessy Admiral Mayo's report to him, in which the Admiral says the paymaster and marines "were marched through the strets two blocks, then back to their boat and released."

Asked Disavowal and Apology.

In view of the publicity, Rear-Admiral Mayo asked for a disovowal and apology, and also that the officer in charge of the Mexican squad should be punished, and that the American flag should be saluted immediately.

RECEIVER FOR J. G. A. LEISHMAN.

Judgment Against Former Ambassador Amounts To $75,000.

New York.—A receiver in supplementary proceedings was appointed for John G. A. Leishman, former Ambassador to Germany, in the matter of the judgment for $75,158 obtained against him in Allegheny county, Pa. This judgment is in favor of Raymond Pynchon & Co., bankers and brokers, on a claim growing out of stock transactions. Leishman is said to be traveling abroad. His home address is Pittsburgh.

ASPHYXIATED IN MOVING VAN.

Boys Stop Up Cracks and Kindle Fire In Bucket.

New York.—Three small boys crawled into a deserted moving van in Harlem, stopped up the cracks to keep out the chill and then squatted around a fire they kindled in a bucket. Patrick Kenny, father of one of the little fellows, searching for him, chanced to look in the van. He found his son Frank unconscious. John Scanlan, a 15-year-old companion, was dead, and the third boy was apparently dying. Gas from the bucket fire had asphyxiated them.

SALVATION ARMY LEADER DEAD.

Wife Of Organization's Secretary Dies In New York.

New York.—Mrs. William Peart, wife of the secretary of the Salvation Army in the United States and second to Miss Booth in command of the army in this country, died at her home in Mount Vernon, N. Y. Mrs. Peart was born in Australia 55 years ago and was one of the first women to exercise the franchise in Australia. She was active in the movement for woman suffrage.

AUTO PLUNGES INTO ELIZABETH RIVER

Two Men Drowned and Five Are Rescued.

SAILORS FORM HUMAN CHAIN

Car was On Way From Portsmouth Jail When It Leaped Through An Open Draw—Chauffeur Goes Down With Car.

Norfolk, Va.—Two men were drowned, and four others had a narrow escape here when an automobile, bearing five of the Jamestown bookmakers who were released from the Portsmouth jail, plunged through an open draw into the Elizabeth River. The four who were rescued from the icy waters are at St. Vincent's Hospital here.

So sudden was the accident that none of the occupants had an opportunity to leap for their lives, and they sank into the river before the eyes of a score of witnesses. Only quick action on the part of a number of sailors who were standing nearby, the first to regain their presence of mind, saved the four, who were struggling against a strong tide.

Four of those in the machine were bookmakers, who were among the 13 arrested at Jamestown several days ago, charged with bookmaking. They had been in the Portsmouth jail, which is not far distant from Norfolk, and an automobile had been employed to take them from the jail to this city after the necessary papers for their release had been procured.

Six In Machine.

Six persons were in the machine, counting the chauffeurr. The trip to this city was made without a mishap until the Elizabeth River draw bridge was reached, which leads directly into the city. A ferry had already blown for the draw to open, but those in the machine apparently did not hear it in time to stop. With the draw wide open they continued across the bridge, while a score of terrified persons looked on.

Too late to stop, the chauffeur saw the open space with the icy waters below. He mad a frantic effort to stop, but the machine shot clear across the open space, and to those looking on, seemed to plung straight down into the water. With a sickening hiss, caused by the hot engine coming in contact with the water, it sank beneath the surface, carrying with it its human burden.

AGED COUPLE USE NOOSE.

Poverty-Stricken, They Hang Themselves From Hook in Apartment.

New York.—Despondent through poverty Jacob Theis, 79 years old, and his wife, Elizabeth, 78 years old, hanged themselves here from the hook in their apartment at 190 First avenue. The aged pair evidently climbed on a chair, put their heads through the twin nooses, kicked the chair away and went together to another land.

HAD 16 WIVES; GETS 10 YEARS.

Man Convicted On Charge Of Violating White Slave Law.

Fort Worth, Texas.—Tudie Arnold, of Blytheville, Ark., accused of having 16 wives, was sentenced in the Federal Court here to 10 years' imprisonment on a technical charge of violating the Mann White Slave act. Seven of Arnold's alleged wives testified against him.

KILLS HIS FATHER'S ASSAILANT.

Virginia Youth Strikes Man, Who Dies From Wound.

Luray, Va.—Arthur Turner, of Rockingham county, was fatally wounded Saturday by George Orve, of Shenandoah, and died Monday. The difficulty started between George Orve, Sr., and young Turner at Orve's livery stable in Shenandoah. The elder Orve called for help and his son came to his assistance. Young Orve, it is said, struck Turner with a pick handle.

TO PAY COLOMBIA FOR CANAL ZONE

Treaty Signed at Bogota Agreeing on $25,000,000.

CLAIM IS OF LONG STANDING

The Colombian Congress Will Be Called Into Special Session To Ratify It—Contains No Rights For a New Canal.

Washington, D. C. — Undisguised gratification is felt by administration officials here at the prospect of finally healing the breach between the United States and Colombia through the treaty just signed at Bogota. If this convention is ratified by the Senates of the two countries, as the officials are confident it will be, it will close amicably a bitter controversy, brought on by the secession of Panama in 1903 and the granting to the United States the Canal Zone and which has cast a blight upon the relations between the United States and all Latin America.

The principal article of the treaty provides for the payment to Colombia of $25,000,000 six months after ratifications have been exchanged between the two countries, as indemnity for the losses she has sustained. This is granted in a lump sum, and the treaty does not attempt to specify how much of this amount is in reparation for the loss of Panama or how much for the loss of the Panama Railway rights.

Colombia is granted the right to ship coal, salt and petroleum from her Atlantic to her Pacific ports, either through the canal or across the Panama Railway, without any charge other than the cost of freight, no duty being assessed. These articles are not produced along the Pacific side of the country and there is no easy communication over land through Colombia on account of the high Andes Mountains.

Fixes Boundary Line.

A third article fixes the boundary line between Colombia and Panama and restores to the latter a strip of territory which has been claimed by Panama. This line is the same as that which was provided in the Cortes-Arosemena treaty between Colombia and Panama, one of the tripartite treaties never ratified by Colombia, except that it fixes definitely the point on the Pacific Coast where the boundary terminates, which is to be mid-way between Points Cocoalita and Ardita. The former treaty left this point to be settled by a tribunal of arbitration to be appointed. Even after the approval of the present treaty by the Colombian and American Senates, a treaty between Colombia and Panama will be necessary before this boundary settlement is final. The United States agrees to use its good offices with Panama in the matter.

Another article expresses the hope that friendly relations between the United States and Colombia may continue from this time forward.

No rights for a new inter-oceanic canal across Colombia by the Atrato River route, and no coaling privileges on San Andreas and Providencia Islands, off the Colombian coast, it was added, were contained in the treaty.

While the Colombian minister, Senor Betancourt, received a cable from his foreign office, informing him of the signing of the agreement, the State Department was still awaiting word from Mr. Thompson.

The Colombian Congress will be called in special session to pass on the treaty before it is submitted to the Senate here.

PROTEST MADE TO GEN. CARRANZA

Washington Views With Grave Concern New Crisis.

EXPULSION ORDER THE CAUSE

Determined Representations To Be Made—Spanish Interests In Torreon Districts Large.

Washington, D. C.—Vigorous representation went from the American Government to General Carranza, the Constitutionalist chief, urging that he modify the order of General Villa expelling Spaniards from Torreon.

This situation is giving grave concern to authorities here. The United States has undertaken to extend to Spaniards in Mexico the same protection it affords American residents there, and Ambassador Riano has been assured that nothing will be left undone to secure for the unfortunates at Torreon every right to which they are entitled under international law and usage.

That Spain proposes to exhaust every resource to protect her people in the revolution-torn republic was made plain, when Rear-Admiral Mayo, at Tampico, cabled the Navy Department that the commanding officer of the British cruiser Hermione had been instructed to care for Spaniards at this besieged Federal port. Officials here did not comment on this development.

Lack Of Data Embarrassing.

The State Department, as well as the Spanish Embassy here, is embarrassed in dealing with the situation at Torreon by a lack of exact information as to the extent of the decree of expulsion and how far it has been executed. It is understood that Villa in a public speech has told the Spaniards of Torreon that they were to be deported en masse; that a commission would be appointed to examine into each individual case, and that such of them as could establish the fact that they have rendered no aid to the Huerta cause would be permitted to return to Torreon.

The gravity of the problem has been increased by unofficial but credible information that this policy of expulsion of the Spaniards is to be of general application; that as rapidly as the Constitutionalists by force of arms extend their control over such cities as Saltillo and Monterey and other places now within the Federal line they intend to drive out the Spaniards and seize their property.

Violates Treaty Rights.

An attempt to carry out such a plan would meet with determined opposition from the United States Government. Officials say the Spaniards are in Mexico under the provisions of treaty conferring the right of residence, trade and travel, and that anything like a sweeping deportation under these circumstances would be in violation of the principles of international law and would form a proper subject of resentment by the Spanish Government even to extent of hostile measures if need be.

The VALIANTS of VIRGINIA

SYNOPSIS.

John Valiant, a rich society favorite, suddenly discovers that the Valiant corporation, which his father founded and which was the principal source of his wealth, has failed. He voluntarily turns over his private fortune to the receiver for the corporation. His entire remaining possessions consist of an old motor car, a white bull dog and Damory court, a neglected estate in Virginia. On the way to Damory court he meets Shirley Dandridge, an auburn-haired beauty, and decides that he is going to like Virginia immensely. An old negro tells Shirley's fortune and predicts great trouble for her on account of a man.

CHAPTER VIII.

What Happened Thirty Years Ago.

When Shirley came across the lawn at Rosewood, Major Montague Bristow sat under the arbor talking to her mother.

The major was massive-framed, with a strong jaw and a rubicund complexion—the sort that might be supposed to have attained the utmost benefit to be conferred by a consistent indulgence in mint-juleps. His blue eyes were piercing and arched with brows like sable rainbows, at variance with his heavy iron-gray hair and imperial. His head was leonine and he looked like a king who has humbled his enemy. It may be added that his linen was fine and immaculate, his black string-tie precisely tied and a pair of gold-rimmed eye-glasses swung by a flat black cord against his white waistcoat.

"Shirley," said her mother, "the major's brutal, and he shan't have his mint-julep."

"What has he been doing?" asked the other, her brows wrinkling in a delightful way she had.

"He has reminded me that I'm growing old."

Shirley looked at the major skeptically, for his chivalry was undoubted. During a long career in law and legislature it had been said of him that he could neither speak on the tariff question nor defend a man for murder, without first paying a tribute to "the women of the South, sah."

"Nothing of the sort," he rumbled.

Mrs. Dandridge's face softened to wistfulness. "Shirley, am I?" she asked, with a quizzical, almost a droll uneasiness. "Why, I've got every emotion I've ever had. I read all the new French novels, and I'm even thinking of going in for the militant suffragette movement."

The girl had tossed her hat and crop on the table and seated herself by her mother's chair. "What was it he said, dearest?"

"He thinks I ought to wear a worsted shawl and arctics." Her mother thrust out one little thin-slippered foot, with its slender ankle gleaming through its open-work stocking like mother-of-pearl. "Imagine! In May. And he knows I'm vain of my feet! Major, if you had ever had a wife, you would have learned wisdom. But you mean well, and I'll take back what I said about the julep. You mix it, Shirley. Yours is even better than Ranston's."

"She makes me one every day, Monty," she continued, as Shirley went into the house. "And when she isn't looking, I pour it into the bush there."

Major Bristow laughed as he bit the end off a cigar. "All the same," he said in his big rumbling voice, "you need 'em, I reckon. You need more than mint-juleps, too You leave the whiskey to me and the doctor, and you take Shirley and pull out for Italy. Why not? A year there would do you a heap of good."

"Shirley," Said Her Mother, "The Major's Brutal."

She shook her head. "No, Monty. It isn't what you think. It's—here." She lifted her hand and touched her heart. "It's been so for a long time. But it may—it can't go on forever, you see. Nothing can."

The major had leaned forward in his chair. "Judith!" he said, and his hand twitched, "it isn't true!" And then, "How do you know?"

She smiled at him. "You remember when that big surgeon from Vienna came to see the doctor last year? Well, the doctor brought him to me. I'd known it before in a way, but it had gone farther than I thought. No one can tell just how long it may be. It may be years, of course, but I'm not taking any sea trips, Monty."

He cleared his throat and his voice was husky when he spoke. "Shirley doesn't know?"

"Certainly not. She mustn't." And then, in sudden sharpness: "You shan't tell her, Monty. You wouldn't dare!"

"No, indeed," he assured her quickly. "Of course not."

"It's just among us three, Doctor Southall and you and me. We three have had our secrets before, eh, Monty?"

"Yes, Judith, we have."

She bent toward him, her hands tightening on the cane. "After all, it's true. Today I am getting old. I may look only fifty, but I feel sixty and I'll admit to seventy-five. It's joy that keeps us young, and I didn't get my fair share of that, Monty. For just one little week my heart had it all—all—and then—well, then it was finished. It was finished long before I married Tom Dandridge. It isn't that I'm empty-headed. It's that I've been an empty-hearted woman, Monty—as empty and dusty and desolate as the old house over yonder on the ridge."

"I know, Judith, I know."

"You've been empty in a way, too," she said. "But it's been a different way. You were never in love—really in love, I mean. Certainly not with me, Monty, though you tried to make me think so once upon a time, before Sassoon came along, and—Beauty Valiant."

The major blinked, suddenly startled. It was out, the one name neither had spoken to the other for thirty years! He looked at her a little guiltily; but her eyes had turned away. "Everything changed then," she continued dreamily, "everything."

The major's fingers strayed across his waistcoat, fumbling uncertainly for his eye-glasses. For an instant he, too, was back in the long-ago past, when he and Valiant had been comrades. It had been a curious three sided affair—he, and Valiant and Sassoon. Sassoon with his dissipated flair and ungovernable temper and strange filh of recklessness; clean, high-idealed, straightaway Valiant; and he—a Bristow, neither better nor worse than the rest of his name. He remembered that mad strained season when he had grimly recognized his own cause as hopeless, and with burning eyes had watched Sassoon and Valiant racing abreast. He remembered that glittering prodigal dance when he had come upon Valiant and Judith standing in the shrubbery, the candle-light from some open door engoldening their faces: hers smiling, a little flippant perhaps, and conscious of her spell; his grave and earnest, yet wistful.

"You promise, John?"

"I give my sacred word. Whatever the provocation, I will not lift my hand against him. Never, never!" Then the same voice, vibrant, appealing. "Judith! It isn't because—because—you care for him?"

He had plunged away in the darkness before her answer came. What had it mattered then to him what she had replied? And that very night had befallen the fatal quarrel!

The major started. How that name had blown away the dust! "That's a long time ago, Judith."

"Thirty years ago tomorrow they fought," she said softly, "Valiant and Sassoon. Every woman has her one anniversary, I suppose, and tomorrow's mine. Do you know what I do, every fourteenth of May, Monty? I keep my room and spend the day always the same way. There's a little book I read. And there's an old hair-cloth trunk that I've had since I was a girl. Down in the bottom of it are some—things, that I take out and set round the room * * * and there is a handful of old letters I go over from first to last. They're almost worn out now, but I could repeat them all with my eyes shut. Then there's a tiny old straw basket with a yellow wisp in it that once was a bunch of cape jessamines. I wore them to that last ball—the night before it happened. The fourteenth of May used to be sad, but now, do you know, I look forward to it! I always have a lot of jessamines that particular day—I'll have Shirley get me some tomorrow—and in the evening, when I go downstairs, the house is full of the scent of them. All summer long it's roses, but on the fourteenth of May it has to be jessamines. Shirley must think me a whimsical old woman, but I insist on being humored."

He smiled, a little bleakly, and cleared his throat.

"Isn't it strange for me to be talking this way now!" she said presently. "Another proof that I'm getting old. But the date brings it very close; it seems, somehow, closer than ever this year.—Monty, weren't you tremendously surprised when I married Tom Dandridge?"

"I certainly was."

"I'll tell you a secret. I was, too. I suppose I did it because of a sneaking feeling that some people were feeling sorry for me, which I never could stand. Well, he was a man any one might honor. I've always thought a woman ought to have two husbands: one to love and cherish, and the other to honor and obey. I had the latter, at any rate."

"And you've lived, Judith," he said.

"Yes," she agreed, with a little sigh, "I've lived. I've had Shirley, and she's twenty and adorable. And I've had people enough, and books to read, and plenty of pretty things to look at, and old lace to wear, and I've kept my figure and my vanity—I'm not too old yet to thank the Lord for that! So don't talk to me about worsted shawls and horrible arctics. For I won't wear 'em. Not if I know myself! Here comes Shirley. She's made two juleps, and if you're a gentleman, you'll distract her attention till I've got rid of mine in my usual way."

* * * * * * * * *

The major, at the foot of the cherry-bordered lane, looked back across the box-hedge to where the two figures sat under the rose-arbor, the mother's face turned lovingly down to Shirley's at her knee. He stood a moment watching them from under his slouched hat-brim.

"You never looked at me that way, Judith, did you!" he sighed to himself. "It's been a long time, too, since I began to want you to—'most forty years. When it came to the showdown, I wasn't even as fit as Tom Dandridge!"

CHAPTER IX.

Damory Court.

"Dar's Dam'ry Co'ot smack-dab ahaid, suh."

John Valiant looked up. Facing them at an elbow of the broad road, was an old gateway of time-nicked stone, clasping an iron gate that was quaint and heavy and red with rust. He put out his hand.

"Wait a moment," he said in a low voice, and as the creaking conveyance stopped, he turned and looked about him.

Facing the entrance the land fell away sharply to a miniature valley through which rambled a willow-bordered brook, in whose shallows short-horned cows stood lazily. Beyond, whither wound the Red Road, he could see a drowsy village, with a spire and a cupolaed court-house; and farther yet a yellow gorge with a wisp of white smoke curling above it marked the course of a crawling far-away railway.

"Et's er moughty fine ol' place, suh, mid dat big revenue ob trees," said Uncle Jefferson. "But Ah reck'n et ain' got none ob de modern conniv-ances."

As Valiant jumped down he was possessed by an odd sensation of old acquaintance—as if he had seen those tall white columns before—an illusory half-vision into some shadowy, fourth-dimensional landscape that belonged to his subconscious self, or that, glimpsed in some immaterial dream-picture, had left a faint-etched memory. Then, on a sudden, the vista vibrated and widened, the white columns expanded and shot up into the clouds, and from every bush seemed to peer a friendly black savage with woolly white hair!

"Wishing-House!" he whispered. The hidden country which his father's thoughts, sadly recurring, had painted to the little child that once he was, in the guise of an endless wonder-tale! His eyes misted over, and it seemed to him that moment that his father was very near.

Leaving the negro to unload his belongings, he traversed an overgrown path of mossed gravel, between box-rows frowsled like the manes of lions gone mad and smothered in an accumulation of matted roots and debris of rotting foliage, and presently, the bulldog at his heels, found himself in the rear of the house.

"Mine!" he said aloud with a rueful pride. "And for general run-downness, it's up to the advertisement." He looked musingly at the piteous wreck and ruin, his gaze sweeping down across the bared fields and unkempt forest. "Mine!" he repeated. "All that, I suppose, for it has the same earmarks of neglect. Between those cultivated stretches it looks like a wedge of Sahara gone astray." His gaze returned to the house. "Yet what a place it must have been in its time!" He went slowly back to where his conductor sat on the lichened horse-block.

"We's heah," called Uncle Jefferson cheerfully. "Whut we gwinter do nex', suh? Reck'n Ah better go ovah ter Miss Dandridge's place fer er crowbah. Lawd!" he added, "ef he ain' got de key! Whut yo' think ob dat now?"

John Valiant was looking closely at the big key; for there were words, which he had not noted before engraved in the massive flange. "Friends all hours." He smiled. The sentiment sent a warm current of pleasure to his finger-tips. Here was the very text of hospitality!

A Lilliputian spider-web was stretched over the preempted keyhole, and he fetched a grass-stem and poked out its tiny gray-striped denizen before he inserted the key in the rusted lock. He turned it with a curious sense of timidity. All the strength of his fingers was necessary before the massive door swung open and the leveling sun sent its late red rays into the gloomy interior.

He stood in a spacious hall, his nostrils filled with a curious but not unpleasant aromatic odor with which the place was strongly impregnated. The hall ran the full length of the building, and in its center a wide, balustraded double staircase led to upper darkness. The floor, where his footprints had disturbed the even gray film of dust, was of fine close parquetry and had been generously strewn everywhere with a mica-like powder. He stooped and took up a pinch in his fingers, noting that it gave forth the curious spicy scent. Dim paintings in tarnished frames hung on the walls. From a niche on the break of the stairway looked down the face of a tall Dutch clock, and on one side protruded a huge bulging something draped with a yellowed linen sheet. From its shape he guessed this to be an elk's head. Dust, undisturbed, lay thickly on everything, ghostly floating cobwebs crawled across his face, and a bat flitted out of a fireplace and vanished squeaking over his head. With Uncle Jefferson's help he opened the rear doors and windows, knocked up the rusted bolts of the shutters and flung them wide.

But for the dust and cobwebs and the strange odor, mingled with the faint musty smell that pervades a sunless interior, the former owner of the house might have deserted it a week ago. On a wall-rack lay two walking-sticks and a gold-mounted hunting-crop, and on a great carved chest below it had been flung an opened book bound in tooled leather. John Valiant picked this up curiously. It was "Lucile." He noted that here and there passages were marked with penciled lines—some light and femininely delicate, some heavier, as though two had been reading it together, noting their individual preferences.

He laid it back musingly, and opening a door, entered the large room it disclosed. This had been the dining-room. At one end stood a crystal-knobbed mahogany sideboard, holding glass candlesticks in the shape of Ionic columns—above it a quaint portrait of a lady in hoops and love-curls—and at the other end was a huge fireplace with rust-red fire-dogs and tarnished brass fender. All these, with the round centipede table and the Chippendale chairs set in order against the walls, were dimmed and grayed with a thick powdering of dust.

The next room that he entered was big and wide, a place of dark colors, nobly smutched of time. It had been at once library and living-room. A great leather settee was drawn near the desk and beside this stood a reading-stand with a small china dog and a squat bronze lamp upon it. In contrast to the orderly dining-room there was about this chamber a sense of untouched disorder—a desk-drawer jerked half-open, a yellowed newspaper torn across and flung into a corner, books tossed on desk and lounge, and in the fireplace a little heap of whitened ashes in which charred fragments told of letters and papers burned in haste.

Suddenly he lifted his eyes. Above the desk hung a life-size portrait of a man, in the high soft stock and velvet collar of half a century before. The right eye, strangely, had been cut from the canvas. He stood straight and tall, one hand holding an eager hound in leash, his face proud and florid, his single, cold, steel-blue eye staring down through its dusty curtain with a certain malicious arrogance, and his lips set in a sardonic curve that seemed about to sneer. It was for an instant as if the pictured figure confronted the young man who stood there, mutely challenging his entrance into that tomb-like and secret-keeping quiet; and he gazed back as fixedly, repelled by the craft of the face, yet subtly attracted. "I wonder who you were," he said. "You were cruel. Perhaps you were wicked. But you were strong, too."

He returned to the outer hall to find that the negro had carried in his trunk, and he bade him place it, with the portmanteau, in the room he had just left. Dusk was falling.

"Uncle Jefferson," said Valiant abruptly, "have you a family?"

"No, suh. Jes' me en mah ol' 'ooman."

"Can she cook?"

"Cook!" The genial titter again captured his dusky escort. "When she got de fixens, Ah reck'n she de beaten'es cook in his heah county."

"How would you both like to live here with me for a while? She could cook and you could take care of me."

Uncle Jefferson's eyes seemed to turn inward with mingled surprise and introspection. He shifted from one foot to the other, swallowed difficultly several times, and said, "Ah ain' nebbah seed yo' befo', suh."

"Well, I haven't seen you either, have I?"

"Dat's de truf, suh, 'deed et is! Hyuh, hyuh! Whut Ah means ter say is dat de ol' 'ooman kain' cook no fancy didoes like what dey eats up Norf. She kin jes' cook de Ferginey style."

"That sounds good to me," quoth Valiant. "I'll risk it. Now as to wages—"

"Ah ain' specticulous as ter de wages," said Uncle Jefferson. "Ah knows er gemman when Ah sees one."

"Then it's a bargain," responded Valiant with alacrity. "Can you come at once?"

"Yas, suh, me en Daph gwineter come ovah 'fus' thing in de mawnin'. Whut yo'-all gwineter do fo' yo' suppah?"

"I'll get along," Valiant assured him cheerfully. "Here is five dollars. You can buy some food and things to cook with, and bring them with you. Do you think there's a stove in the kitchen?"

"Ah reck'n," replied Uncle Jefferson. "En ef dar ain' Daph kin cook er Chris'mus dinnah wid fo' stones en er tin skillet. Yas, suh!"

WOOD OF IMMENSE VALUE

Greenheart, South American Product, Has Most Wonderful Qualities for the Shipbuilder.

Greenheart, the wood which the Isthmian canal commission is desirous of securing for use in the construction of docks and similar works in the Panama canal, because it is said by experts to resist more than any other wood the attacks of marine borers which rapidly destroy piles and other submarine structures, is one of the most valuable of timbers. It is native of South America and the West Indies, and from its bark and fruits is obtained bibirine, which is often used as a febrifuge instead of quinine.

The wood is of a dark green color, sap wood and heart wood being so much alike that they can with difficulty be distinguished from each other. The heart wood is one of the most desirable of all timbers, particularly in the shipbuilding industry. Indisputable records show that the best grades surpass iron and steel in lasting qualities in salt water, submerged logs having remained intact for one hundred years.

In the Kelvingrove museum, Glasgow, there are two pieces of planking which illustrate better than anything else this durable quality. They are both from a wreck which was submerged eighteen years off the west coast of Scotland. The one specimen—greenheart—is merely slightly pitted on the surface, the body of the wood being perfectly sound and untouched, while the other—teak—is almost entirely eaten away.

It is extensively used in shipbuilding for keelsons, beams, engine bearings and planking, and it is also used in the general arts, but its excessive weight unfits it for many purposes for which its other properties would render it eminently suitable.—Below the Rio Grande.

Legend of Aconite.

Aconite is classed by homeopathic authorities as the patriarch of drugs, as far as literature is concerned. It is told how Hercules went down to the lower regions and carried the three-headed hound Cerberus to the upper world. That ferocious beast was raging at this treatment, and the froth that fell to the ground was the origin of aconite, for it grew up from the froth as from seeds. It was on a bleak, windswept hill or mountain, and it is in such regions that the plant grows today. This hill, in Pontica, was known in olden days as 'Aconitos."

LOCALS

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kyle of Reedsville were entertained at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. V. Foster on Tuesday.

Elias Krumrine of near Glen Iron has been at the home of his daughter, Mrs. L. O. Packer in Centre Hall during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Horner are now located in Reading, having gone to that city from near Tusseyville a short time ago. It is Mr. Horner's intention to take up the ministry, and it is to prepare for that work that he went to Berks county. They were accompanied to Reading by Mr. Horner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Horner of near Linden Hall.

James S. Reish is a firm believer in the saying that misfortune never comes singly. Just a few days after he moved from Centre Hall to his farm near Potters Mills, he injured his thumb, and for a week or more suffered great pain, and a few days ago he fell down a stairway, and in some manner injured himself inwardly. His condition for a time was rather serious, he being unable to retain anything in his stomach.

The George Horner family near Linden Hall had a series of accidents the fore part of this week, beginning with John being caught by a limb of a tree and switched from a load of hay. No bones were broken but the youth was pretty badly bruised. The same evening two younger brothers hitched a horse to a buggy to go to the Miess store for groceries, when on descending a hill it was discovered that either a hold-back strap had not been fastened or had become detached. The horse started to run, smashed up the buggy, and made a dash for liberty. The boys were not hurt, neither was the horse, but the vehicle will need a lot of repairing.

DANIELS LAUDS REORGANIZERS.

Cabinet Member Praises Work Done in Pennsylvania by Reorganizers—Attributes Wilson's Nomination to their Firmness.

The statement that President Wilson, head of the Democratic administration, is in sympathy with the reorganizers in Pennsylvania, and that the reorganizers in Pennsylvania are in full accord with the Democratic administration in Washington, is not merely talk on the part of the reorganizers, but it is a fact, and was emphatically so expressed by Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy in President Wilson's Cabinet, at the annual Jefferson Day dinner of the Central Democratic Club, at the Chestnut street auditorium, Harrisburg, on Monday evening.

Lauding A. Mitchell Palmer, candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, Vance C. McCormick, candidate for Governor, and William T. Creasy, for Lieutenant Governor, Secretary Daniels started an ovation for the candidates.

While the mention of President Wilson, Bryan, Secretary of Labor Wilson, Berry, Ambassador Guthrie, State Chairman Morris and other loyal Democrats evoked applause, the mere mention of the candidates' names resulted in repeated cheers, not only when Secretary Daniels referred to them during his speech but when the other speakers mentioned their names.

Seated about the speaker's table at the right of President Jones was Secretary Daniels, and on the left Congressman Palmer. Others at the table were Congressmen Robert E. Diefenderfer, Frank L. Dershem and A. M. Brodbeck; Vance C. McCormick, William T. Creasy, William H. Berry, Robert S. Bright of Philadelphia; Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, James I. Blakslee; State Chairman, Roland S. Morris; Senators Joseph Heacock, James A. Miller and C. W. Sones, Postmaster John A. Thornton, Philadelphia; Casper Dull, Lee F. Lybarger, Dr. W. Horace Hoskins, Philadelphia; Judge W. Rush Gillan, Franklin; Benjamin M. Nead, Arthur McKean, secretary of the State Committee; Congressman Arthur R. Rupley, Carlisle; George H. Rowley, Fred C. Kirkendall, Scranton; Representative E. R. Benson, Mt. Jewett, candidate for congress in this district; and a number of Harrisburg city officials. Nearly every county in the state was represented, the total number being 850.

JONES PRESENTS SPEAKERS.

President Jones, following the dinner, introduced the speakers. After paying a tribute to the Democracy of President Jefferson, he introduced Mr. Daniels as one of the stalwart members of President Wilson's cabinet. Mr. Daniels was greeted with three cheers that frequently characterized the enthusiasm of the diners, as he rose to speak.

Mr. Daniel's speech, too, brought out much cheering, for when he said: "It is better to stand for convictions in defeat than win victory by devious ways," the room cheered until the rafters gave back an echo. He referred to the big part the "stone wall delegation of Pennsylvania" had played in the Baltimore convention nominating Woodrow Wilson and to the leader of that delegation, Mr. Palmer as "second to no man in National leadership in the House of Representatives." The Democratic party he said had come into the promised land after forty years in the wilderness and Berry and Creasy, he added, had been among the men who had never faltered during the dark days.

"Pennsylvania," he declared, "occupies a high place in the synagogue of democracy, for here you fight for every inch of ground gained."

President Wilson, he asserted, is the wisest and most patriotic of men and James I. Blakslee, Fourth Assistant Postmaster General and former Secretary of the Democratic State Committee, he characterized as another man of Pennsylvania who sits at the head of the table at Washington. Of Bryan, the speaker said: "He saw the evils and had a vision long before the rest of us."

"My message to the Democrats of the country is," said the Secretary, "that it keep close in touch with these old principals and to keep the faith with the people. There are no problems of today or tomorrow that cannot be settled in the light of the teachings of Thomas Jefferson."

McCORMICK OVATION.

For a minute and a half after President Jones introduced Vance C. McCormick, the assemblage, standing as one man, gave cheer after cheer "for our own home town citizen whom you all know."

"I stand here because of a vicious assault on the party I love," is the way Mr. McCormick opened his speech. Another prolonged demonstration followed, and when later he said, "I am out on the firing line to stay until the finish," the crowd was up again.

He told the diners that they knew too well how the Penrose system worked, as they saw it right here in this city.

"The great issue is Penrosism. That must be put out of business," he said. He spoke of the system of con-

The Walter Funeral.

The remains of Alfred Walter were interred in the Millheim cemetery on Saturday morning. The occasion brought to Millheim a large number of people from all parts of the country who were personally acquainted with the deceased and with whom during his life they had had business relations. Their presence at the funeral was the last act of respect they could perform.

The religious services were conducted by Rev. Williams, pastor of the Methodist church, of which denomination the deceased was an active member. There were also present all the local ministers, and Rev. F. H. Foss acted as Master and Rev. Geesey as Chaplain in rendering the ceremonies common with the Masonic order at the grave. There were also present a large number of Masons, members of Centre Hall and Bellefonte lodges.

Mr. Walter was cashier of the Millheim Banking Company since its organization, and as such was well acquainted with the financial movements in lower Penns and Brush Valleys. He was directly or indirectly interested in many business ventures, and these, with rare exceptions, proved profitable. His advice was largely sought and heeded in business affairs. The approval of Mr. Walter in business ventures invariably meant success. In this particular light the passing away of this man will be keenly felt by many whose acts were largely controlled by him.

It appears Mr. Walter's death was due to but a slight extent to the inhaling of gas which escaped from either an imperfect gas cock connected with a heater or which was accidently interferred with in turning off the light on retiring. The man threw open a window on retiring, and the physicians are certain that had Mr. Walter had a normal heart, no ill effects would have been experienced by him.

Class Play. "Farm Folks."

Students of the Centre Hall High School, comprising the upper two classes, will render a play entitled "Farm Folks," a drama in four acts, on class night, Tuesday April 28. The cast contains eleven characters, and each actor is preparing to do his or her best in the play, which has a good plot. An admission will be charged, the proceeds from which will go toward purchasing reference books for the High School. The school is badly in need of such books and it is hoped that this first purchase will form a nucleus for a reference library. See posters for prices, etc.

trolling legislation by using appropriation measures as a club and how Harrisburg men was the working of the bi-partisan machine in the Senate, "where Jim McNichol and Jim Hall sat with hands across the aisle throttling the will of the people."

He pointed out the significance of the defeat of the $50,000,000 road loan. "The people of this State defeated that loan, not because they did not want good roads, but because Penrose wanted that $50,000,000 loan. Think of Penrose with $50,000,000. Why, it would all have been promised by this time."

He explained his position on State road building on a policy of "pay-as-you-go." It is possible to appropriate from seven to eight millions every year for good roads." The defeat of the road loan spells the defeat of Penrose in November," said Mr. McCormick.

Addresses were also made by Mr. Creasy, Mr. Berry and Mr. Palmer. The latter stirred his hearers to great enthusiasm, and three times they induced him to continue his speaking after he had expressed a desire to finish his talk when he made his campaign visits to the counties represented by his hearers.

Centre county was represented at the banquet by State Committeeman W. D. Zerby, Sheriff A. B. Lee, Register J. Frank Smith, F. E. Naginey, Patrick Garrity, all of Bellefonte; Hon. R. M. Foster and James Smith, State College; several gentlemen from Philipsburg, and the writer.

From Kansas.

Jacob K. Gise of Beloit, Kansas, formerly a resident of Potter township, writes the Reporter these cheering words:

I am sending you the subscription price for the Reporter for 1914, for we cannot do without the old home paper.

Very glad to see the stand you are taking in all that pertains to the improvement of your local town.

We are enjoying a season of building in Beloit. About one hundred houses, including a sixty thousand dollar post office building were erected within the last year.

REV. JOHN HEWITT.

A Brief Sketch of the Man Who Seeks Seat in Congress.

Rarely does it happen that any party or people has a candidate of such pure life, nobility of character, broad culture, and lofty purposes as is offered not to the Democrats, but to all the people of the Twenty-first Congressional District in the person of John Hewitt of this county.

By experience, education, ability, integrity and honesty he is undoubtedly the one man in the district that should be nominated. In the years he has been among the people of Bellefonte he has endeared himself not only to all the people in the town, but to a large number of persons in various parts of the county who have become his devoted friends.

Mr. Hewitt in his life has been brought in contact with so many men in every station of life, that he has become an expert as a leader among men, being endowed by nature with a kindly and genial disposition, he is pre-eminently fitted to meet and fully and honorably discharge the duties of a representative in Congress.

Mr. Hewitt has been a resident of Centre county all told twenty-five or thirty years. Located in Bellefonte some years, he then served pastorates at Columbus, Ohio, and Lincoln, Nebraska. At the latter place he enjoyed the confidence, friendship, and association of Hon. W. J. Bryan and is now recognized as one of that eminent citizen's firm and devoted friends.

In educational matters in early life he was a teacher in a manual training school in Maryland, then in Burlington College, N. J.; then a tutor in Latin in a private school in Mississippi; then principal of the Academy at Huntingdon, Pa.; then principal of the State Normal at Bloomsburg, Pa., and while in Ohio and Nebraska he rendered great service in an educational way to the University of the State of Ohio, at Columbus, and at the University at Lincoln, Nebraska. He has moreover rendered a great and lasting service to the young men of his faith, who have been and are now in attendance upon our great Pennsylvania State College.

No candidate now seeking the nomination of any party in the Twenty-first Congressional district has a better conception of the needs of the people, not only of the district, but of the state, than has Mr. Hewitt. Well educated, and cultured in all the amenities of life, a man of fine abilities, he has all the sociable qualities which would necessarily make him a conspicuous member of the House of Representatives. If the people of the district seek a man who will, as a representative, honor them they will find in him Centre county's candidate for Congress.

As a summary of his work the following is quoted from last week's Centre Democrat:

"Having traveled over all parts of Pennsylvania, he has become acquainted with its varied interests as well as with the general character of its people. The belief that he is qualified to represent the interests of all classes of people is further confirmed by the following facts, namely: Not only has his calling introduced him to the homes of rich and poor, educated and uneducated alike, but he has worked on the farm, clerked in the store, roughed it on the plains with Indians, cowboys, pioneers and railway construction crews; wrought as agent of charity societies among city poor and as a manager of a city hospital; served eight years as Chaplain to a regiment of the National Guards; served as State Secretary of the Red Cross Society; on State Commission appointed by Governors of Ohio and Nebraska; as Chaplain of many State Democratic Conventions, and for twenty-four years as a member of a nation-wide deliberative body in which, from time to time, the most distinguished jurists, statesmen, governors, financiers, educators and authors have sat as members."

Wednesday evening, April 29, the commencement exercises of the local high school will be held in Grange Hall. The class this year numbers four; namely, Misses Anna Rearick, Jennie Stahl, and Messrs. Fred Stover and Ralph Homan.

Celebrates 50th Birthday.

Mrs. G. O. Benner sprung a surprise upon her husband, Merchant G. O. Benner, Tuesday night by apprising him of his fiftieth birthday anniversary by way of having a number of near friends invited to their home where she had carefully prepared a sumptuous supper. Mr. Benner pleaded ignorance of any knowledge of the preparations made in his honor, and as it was the first surprise of this sort in his fifty years, he enjoyed it in its fullest measure. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Bradford, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Lingle, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Arney, and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Arney.

LOCALS

Several new automobiles will find their way to Centre Hall within a very short time.

George Boozer and Ray Durst are attending the summer Normal School at Spring Mills.

A daughter was born a few days ago to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stoner, near Tusseyville.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Armstrong and daughter Miss Grace spent Tuesday in Centre Hall with Mrs. Armstrong's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Runkle. They have charge of a fraternity house at State College.

Mrs. L. W. S. Person will be at the residence of Mrs. M. E. Strohm, Centre Hall, Pa., April 23rd to 27th, inclusive, with a complete line of the latest New York styles in ladies' and children's millinery. (2t)

William A. Ferree of Oak Hall Station, the dealer in produce, was in Centre Hall on Tuesday and favored the Reporter with his presence. He travels in a car, and finds the roads gradually improving.

C. J. Finkle of Spring Mills, who has been suffering from a sore eye for several months, is now confident that the member will be fully restored in the course of time. When out doors, Mr. Finkle must have the eye covered.

David W. Miller, one of Ferguson township's best citizen's and a veteran of the Civil War, was in Centre Hall on Wednesday. He is being assured by many Democrats that he will receive their support at the primaries in May, for the nomination for assembly-man, and to further increase his chances of success he is making a close canvass of the county.

Alvin Stump had a rather thrilling experience as he was driving across the valley the other day. He struck a match to light his pipe, and unobserved by him, a spark flew into some straw in the rear of the wagon, setting it on fire, and before Mr. Stump discovered the situation the wagon was ablaze. In his effort to extinguish the flames, the grass along the roadside was ignited, and while he was extinguishing these flames, the side of his wagon was burned out. His predicament was observed by a traveler who hurried to his assistance and together the day was saved.

J. O Deininger will celebrate his eighty-fourth birthday tomorrow (Friday). Mr. Deininger is about town every day, and is able to read the weekly and daily newspapers, and is not thinking of reducing his tob cco allowance.

Spring Mills.

R. G. Kennelly went to Snow Shoe to work at the carpenter trade.

Mr. Hartly was called to Pittsburgh on Saturday on account of the death of his daughter.

MEANT FOR TRAVELER

DESIGNERS HAVE SUPPLIED ALL SORTS OF APPAREL.

One of the Handsomest of the Tourist Coats, in Tweed, Is Shown—Shepherd Checks and Plaids Also Popular.

No department of woman's dress is more complete than that of traveling apparel, and most of the garments are, like the modeled sketch, suitable for general touring purposes, whether by motor, steamer or rail.

Here the material is tan Scotch tweeds with a hair-line check in black. Plain tan cloth is used for the collar, cuffs and belt sections back and front, and plain covered buttons for further trimming.

The coat is comfortably large enough to get over a suit and its lines are exceedingly graceful. Like the majority of wraps, it is half lined. Very wide straight sleeves are set into drop shoulders and are given deep turned back cuffs, scalloped and buttoned on the outside in a novel manner.

The front edges above the belt are cut in square ends, which fall in a fold at either side. The right side is gathered into the short belt section, which buttons across the left side, and the material below the belt is laid in a few folds, lifted and draped up from the hem.

Some scant fullness in the back is caught under another high belt section, buttoned to the coat at either end.

Shepherd checks and plaids are quite as much to be considered as ever, for they, like navy serge, never actually go out of style; but this year they are entirely dependent on cut and graceful hanging from the shoulders for success. All coats, whether for separate wear or accompanying skirts, are hung from the shoulder blades instead of the top of the shoulder. It is an important note, since it at once stamps the design as modern and, moreover, is much more graceful than the latter.

Three-quarter lengths are very much in order and are smart looking. All variations of the Norfolk are popular. Most of them are quite high in the neck, with good-sized turnover collars and long and very moderate-sized sleeves that finish with turnback cuffs or bands. There are always pockets in these, but instead of the patch variety, they are made inside with the outside flap serving a purely decorative purpose.—Washington Star.

RESTORATIVE FOR THE SKIN

Bathing Face, Neck and Arms With Hot Milk and Water Is One of the Best Known Processes.

You will enjoy a wonderful skin restorative if you bathe the face, neck and arms every night with hot milk and water, which is a wonderful skin restorative, dry gently, with a very soft and fine face towel, and then apply a very little good face cream, with circular and upward massage movements of the finger tips.

Smooth the eyebrows and lashes with a modicum of pure white vaseline.

In the morning again bathe the face with hot milk and water, then rinse with cold distilled water to which a few drops of toilet vinegar or lait virginal have been added.

Dry thoroughly, always using upward movements, apply a little toilet cream, wiping off any superfluity with a soft handkerchief, dust on some good powder and smooth with a fine wash leather.

This simple treatment has really astonishingly beneficial effects in a very few days if persevered with. Ailing ones must, of course, be very careful to build up the general health; not by "cosseting," but by common sense precautions. A nourishing but digestible diet, including plenty of milk, eggs, fish, poultry and beef once a day, as much fresh air and sunshine as possible, judicious but not strenuous exercise and plenty of rest in between, provide an excellent restorative regime to those below par.

Modish High Collars.

Every collar, whether on jacket or waist, is open and high, often supported by wires or crinoline linings. Coat collars in three different colors are very dressy. For instance, a tan-colored suit may have three high standing collars, one of black satin, another of vivid red taffeta and the inside one of crisp white organdy. A rosebud is a pretty finish at the front point of these collars. It is always in one of the colors used in the collar. A set of these triple collars and rosebud gives a smart finish to a simple dress. Collar, cuff and yoke sets of white organdy are dainty for dresses of silk or gabardine serge.

A Few Large Hats.

Some of the newest hat models are large and flat and very elaborately garnished with flowers, lace and ribbon. Maline is a very important factor in the construction of these models, black and the most delicate tones of pink and amber having the preference. Ostrich plumes of contrasting color are favored by this designer, who also achieves remarkably beautiful results by brightening up her black models by giving them exquisitely tinted tapestry or chiffon crowns.

Unveiled Veilings.

Veils that have long been veiled from the public eye are returning, say the fashion authorities. Over in Paris they are assuming the nose veil and here in America we have been showing a number of new veilings which make wide use of the chenille dot—long banished from the list of things tolerated.

HOPE FOR RAIN-SOAKED HAT

Generally May Be Trimmed Freshly and Worn for Second Best, at the Least.

Because you are disgusted with the wretched appearance of your unfortunate rain-drenched hat, don't throw it away. Having allowed it to dry gradually by placing it on a flat surface out of reach of the sun's rays, study it carefully and see what can be done to make it wearable—if not for best—at least for general running about. If the trimmings are of flowers and ribbons, they won't be worth the saving and the chances are that the crown will be dented and discolored But as the brim of a hat rarely gets badly injured by a drenching rain you can face it freshly and then cover the crown with a length of broad sash ribbon. Beginning at what is destined to be the low side of the hat, tack one edge of the ribbon close to the joining of the rim and the crown, then draw it in soft rippling folds all about the top and toward the high side, where the two ends of the ribbon may be shaped and wired to form a pair of rabbit ears. Join these under a bow of narrow velvet ribbon.

Bead Necklaces Very Popular.

Attention at the present time is principally focused on bead necklaces, says the Dry Goods Economist. These are being offered in an almost endless variety of styles, colors and materials. The latest offerings in this line are extremely long bead necklaces, ranging in length from 72 to 90 inches. When placed about the neck these reach almost to the hem of the gown. Various materials are employed for these chains, including wood, glass, etc. One of the foremost types is constructed entirely of extremely small beads, in braided or rope effects.

CHARACTERISTIC ARGUMENTS WITH UMPIRES

Matty McIntyre, Former American League Star.

Contrary to general opinion, a ball player doesn't have to use impolite language to be ejected from a game. One day last summer at Comiskey park, Chicago, several White Sox players told the things they had done to seriously ruffle the feelings of umpires.

Billy Sullivan, famous Sox catcher, seldom argues with an umpire. When he does it is because he is convinced that he is right.

During the game in question Sullivan believed the umpire missed a strike, in a pinch, and he was about to kick when he noticed the plate was almost obscured by dust. He stopped, and, wiping the dust away with his big glove, squatted behind the batter and signaled the pitcher.

Imagine Sullivan's surprise, as he waited for his pitcher, to hear the umpire say his services were no longer required in that particular game.

"Why, I haven't opened my mouth," said the surprised catcher.

"I realize that," replied the ump, "but you are entirely too proficient with the deaf and dumb language."

"That reminds me of how I was chased under peculiar circumstances," chirped Matty McIntyre. "In a game at Detroit, when I was a Tiger, an umpire called what I thought was a bad strike. To show my indignation I walked in a circle around the umpire and catcher. I didn't mean a thing, but I was sore.

"The crowd took the cue and started after the umpire. When I resumed my position in the box the ump remarked:

"'Well, McIntyre, you march so well, suppose you carry the parade to the clubhouse.'

"'You don't mean I'm out of the game, do you?' I demanded.

"'That's just it. You missed your calling when you began playing ball. You'd make a better soldier.' And I had to beat it."

"Fielder Jones and Tim Hurst pulled a funny one," said Doc White, the great southpaw pitcher. "I was pitching and Fielder was not agreeing with Tim's ruling. As was his habit, he would rush in from center to dispute the point with Tim.

"Finally the foot race and argument got on Tim's nerves and he decided to stop it. As Jones started in for the 'steenth time Hurst hurried from behind the bat to meet him. Jones guessed Tim's intention and stopped to talk with George Davis at short. But Hurst was not to be fooled.

"'Keep on a-coming, Jones, until you get to the clubhouse,' Hurst shouted angrily, while Jones and Davis talked.

"'Why, I haven't said a word to you,' answered Jones, surprised.

"'It's not what you've said, but what you're thinking about me,' replied Hurst, and, despite Jones' promise, Tim stood firm."

PITCHERS CAUSE OF WORRY

Connie Mack Gives Much Thought to His Twirling Staff—Graves Is Latest Acquisition.

Connie Mack is giving a good deal of thought to his pitching staff. On paper, everything looks rosy for the world's champions. Bender and Plank are still with him and Coombs promises to come back to form this season. Shawkey and Bush have the advantage of a season's experience. He has in reserve Carroll Brown, Houck, Pennock, Wyckoff and Joe Graves.

Pitcher Joe Graves.

But Connie Mack always faces the possibility that Bender and Plank may go back on him. With the exception of a brief interval of Coombs, Bender and Plank are all Connie has had. He won his first pennant in 1905 with these two mainstays. He took his latest, in 1913, with the same pair.

Coombs is still a doubtful quantity. He has been seriously ill, badly injured. Connie does not intend to be caught with only Bush and Shawkey to depend on, and so will give his best talents to bringing out his young quartet.

The main trouble with all four is a most amazing wildness. Houck was the wildest man in the league last year, with 122 passes in 175 2-3 innings. Except for Gregg, Brown was next. He walked 91. Wyckoff was barely used.

All three had a tendency to blow in a pinch, so much so that Connie never considered using them in the world series, but sent in Bush, a much less successful pitcher.

Manager Mack secured Graves from Brainerd, Minn., last year, and the youngster gives promise of making as big a sensation in big league company as Plank and Bush. The two last named also hail from Brainerd.

Yates Is Manager.

Bob Yates, who as a young pitcher was with the Phillies a few seasons ago, has been named manager of the Hamilton team of the Canadian league by the new owners, replacing Davy Rowan, who has been signed by the former owners and who claims his contract must be lived up to. During the last few years Yates has devoted most of his time to practising medicine and coaching the Swartmore College team in basket ball, though he has served brief engagements as a pitcher with Dallas, Los Angeles, Providence and Scranton.

$2750 REWARD FOR MURDERER

Offers Reward For Murderer.

Media.—A thousand excited citizens at a mass meeting here decided to offer $1,000 reward for the capture of the slayer of William McKniff, who was killed here. Prison Warden Thomas S. Fields, Frank B. Rhoades and H. C. Snowden, Jr., were appointed as a committee to raise the funds. The Media Fire Company, of which McKniff was a member, also held a meeting and offers a reward of $250. Aroused by the killing of McKniff, the Delaware County Commissioners offered a reward of $1,000 for the capture of his assailant and the borough council at a special meeting offered $500 reward. The rewards offered now total $2,750. McKniff was found lying unconscious on the street after he had been shot, beaten and robbed. He died without regaining consciousness.

Replies To Physician.

Scranton.—Scranton poor directors lost no time in answering the criticisms of Dr. T. H. Salmon, of the United States Marine Hospital, Washington, who at a meeting of the Lackawanna Medical Society declared that the Hillside Home, an institution for the city's poor and insane, was being run improperly. Dr. Salmon, who is on a leave of absence, is investigating hospitals for the insane for the National Society for the Investigation of Mental Hygiene. He not only concondemned conditions at the home, but also the idea of having a board comprised of laymen having charge of such an institution.

Women and Baby Saved In Fire.

Chester.—The fire department experienced difficulty in suppressing a blaze that menaced a business block on Market street, the main thoroughfare. The fire started in the basement of the K. Swartz property and damaged the stock of the Chester Market Company and the adjoining men's clothing store of Louis Goldstein. Mrs. E. Polis Booth and Mrs. Lottie Hubbell and the latter's baby were rescued by firemen from apartments on the second floor. The loss is more than $5,000 and is covered by insurance.

Prefers Prison To Admitting Insolvency

Reading.—Ivan Baylon, who has been held in the Berks county jail for two years, finally agreed to sign a paper and be freed under the insolvency act. Baylon was committed by Alderman Breen on a surety charge and during his incarceration he has held out that he had $1,200 in a Philadelphia bank and the authorities could not free him. He has also said that he would collect $1.50 from the county for every day that he has been a prisoner, alleging it is due him in witness fees.

Makes Gown For Rome Madonna.

Mt. Carmel.—Mrs. M. De Laporta and her daughter, Clara, have completed a silk, hand-embroidered gown to be placed on the statue of the Madonna in the Vatican at Rome. The first of May each year a parade is held and the Madonna is crowned. Mrs. De Laporta, who lived in Rome last year, presented at that time a hand-embroidered cloak for the statue. Her gift this year will be blessed by the Pope.

Incendiary Blamed For Fire.

Washington.—Fire alleged to have been of incendiary origin destroyed the fan house of the Cherry Valley mine of the Pittsburgh & Eastern Coal Company, near Burgettstown, making it impossible for the mine to be operated until the fan is replaced. The mine has been shut down for a week, the miners refusing to work pending the signing of the wage scale.

Stolen Auto Is Found.

Pottsville.—The automobile of Dr. Mary Kingsbury, which was stolen April 1, presumably as an "April fool" joke, was found by State police in a garage owned by a man named Lewis. The latter says he does not know how the car got there. The police expect to make arrests tomorrow.

4 Escape Runaway Mine Wagons.

Mt. Carmel.—Three loaded wagons, becoming detached while 300 feet up the No. 5 slope of the Pennsylvania Colliery, dashed downward wrecking part of the slope and smashing several other wagons. Four men escaped by leaping into safety holes.

Pittsburgh Egg Candlers Strike.

Pittsburgh.—Candling was stopped here when the employes of fifty egg dealers walked out because their demand for eighteen dollars for a fifty-hour week had not been granted. The dealers were having eggs inspected before placing them in storage.

BEST REMEDIES FOR SORES AND ULCERS

Mr. C. A. Butler, of Salem, Va., writes: "I can safely say that Hancock's Sulphur Compound is the best remedy I ever used for sores. One of my little boys, eight years old, had a solid sore all over his face, we tried different kinds of medicine, but none seemed to do any good. Our son, nineteen years old, had a sore on his leg for three months and nothing did him good. We used Hancock's Sulphur Compound on both and it did its work quickly and it was not over a week until both were well." Hancock's Sulphur Compound is sold by all dealers. Business Proposition.

A boy who had done something to incur the wrath of his mother and then had taken to his heels was hotly pursued for some distance by her. Finding it was useless to continue the pursuit, and almost beside herself with rage, the old lady shouted at the top of her voice: "I'll give anybody a dime to catch that boy!" The boy instantly stopped and, turning round, shouted in reply: "Give me the dime and I'll come back."

France Honors American Artist.

The French government has purchased for the Luxembourg gallery the original painting by Arthur Rackham of "Jack Spratt and His Wife," one of the series of Rackham pictures now running in St. Nicholas Magazine. This is the highest honor that the French government can confer upon a painting by a living artist. Not until the artist is dead are his canvases eligible for the Louvre.

The nervous lady was calling on the calm and collected mother of six.

"Do look at the baby!" shrieked the caller.

"What's the matter with the baby?" smiled the mother.

"He's playing with a big carving-knife!"

UPWARD START

After Changing from Coffee to Postum.

Many a talented person is kept back because of the interference of coffee with the nourishment of the body.

This is especially so with those whose nerves are very sensitive, as is often the case with talented persons. There is a simple, easy way to get rid of coffee troubles and a Tenn. lady's experience along these lines is worth considering. She says:

"Almost from the beginning of the use of coffee it hurt my stomach. By the time I was fifteen I was almost a nervous wreck, nerves all unstrung, no strength to endure the most trivial thing, either work or fun.

"There was scarcely anything I could eat that would agree with me. The little I did eat seemed to give me more trouble than it was worth. I was literally starving; was so weak I could not sit up long at a time.

"It was then a friend brought me a hot cup of Postum. I drank part of it and after an hour I felt as though I had had something to eat — felt strengthened. That was about five years ago, and after continuing Postum in place of coffee and gradually getting stronger, today I can eat and digest anything I want, walk as much as I want. My nerves are steady.

"I believe the first thing that did me any good and gave me an upward start, was Postum, and I use it altogether now instead of coffee."

Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum — must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

GIVE QUAIL A CHANCE

IS FARMER'S FRIEND AND MONEY-SAVER EVERYWHERE.

Sportsman in Destroying Birds of Such Direct Economic Importance Does Damage Which Cannot Be Estimated in Dollars.

Careful and conservative students of its habits have rated every quail as worth five dollars to the farmer. Few turkeys yield so much, yet the farmer would feel insulted to have a sportsman ask—or take without asking—the privilege of shooting some of his domestic fowls.

The man with the gun may not maim or even frighten his horses and cattle, though he frequently does injure them more or less through the latter cause if not the former, but in destroying birds of such direct economic importance he does a damage which cannot be estimated in dollars and cents.

Guiltless of even a little trespassing charged to its cousin, the ruffed grouse or pheasant, that of feasting on young twigs, sprouts and buds, it has never been convicted of real damage at any season of the year.

It is a diligent gleaner in stubble fields, but there is no evidence that it destroys either sprouting or ripening grain.

Few birds, save the rose-breasted grosbeak, will devour Colorado potato bugs like the quail. The moth and larva of the cut-worm are eaten with relish. Chinch bug, cotton worm, cucumber beetle, wireworm, cloverleaf weevil, army worm, cotton boll weevil, rose bug, grasshopper, locust and tobacco worm butterfly are among the ingredients of its flesh diet. Few birds eat so large a proportion of injurious insects.

Just the money value saved to us by this intervention cannot be even approximated. But when we consider the fact that figures show the loss from the boll worm in some years at $15,000,000; potato beetle, $10,000,000; cotton worm, $30,000,000; chinch bug and Rocky Mountain locust each $100,000,000, it is very evident that birds which make them a considerable portion of their food are too valuable to be killed just for sport.

Eggs of the Bob White.

As a seed—and weed—destroyer, its mission is scarcely less important. The food capacity of each bird is estimated at a half ounce per day.

Some one, taking Virginia for the basis of computation and allowing four quails to the square mile, finds that in that state alone 573 tons of seeds are consumed by quails during the months from September 1 to April 30. Some of our worst weeds are also included in the list, as grab grass, black plantain, cockle, orange hawk-weed, rag-weed, fox tail, wild morning glory and bindweed.

Though a prolific race, quails have other enemies than the gunner to work for their extinction. One of the most common is heavy snow, cutting off their food supply. As they are ground birds, heavy snow followed by rain or sleet often forms a crust under which they are hopelessly buried.

The farmer who scatters grain freely about the yard in time of heavy snow will find that they are as regular feeders as his domestic fowls, and the little care given for the short period required pays in pleasure as well as in dollars and cents.

USE FRESH MANURE IN FALL

When Distributed at Planting Time Fermentation Burns Roots of Plants—Plow in Fall.

Do not use fresh manure at planting time. The fermentation burns the roots of young plants. It is a good plan to plow fresh manure in the fall and leave the ground rough all winter, so that the alternate freezing and thawing will crumble the soil. Use only well-rotted manure at planting time. If you have none, you would better buy chemical fertilizers, unless your land is desperately in need of decaying vegetable fiber, which it probably is.

For leaf and stem crops, choose a kind of fertilizer which is rich in nitrogen; for fruit and flowers a kind which has a good proportion of phosphoric acid and potash. Potatoes and other root crops also require plenty of potash.

Machinery Is Cheapest.

Some farmers declare that it is cheaper to hire men to run the farm than to buy machinery. Maybe it is but nobody can prove it. Besides the machines never go to town on Saturday and fail to come back on Monday, but are always right on the job when needed and the wife does not have to cook and wash for them.

GARDEN WORK FOR SEEDTIME

Many Insects Attack and Injure Potatoes, Cabbage, Cucumbers, Radishes and Other Plants.

(By FRANK H. SWEET.)

Watch out for these.

The potato bug attacks potatoes, egg plants and tomatoes. Use paris green and other arsenic poisons.

The cabbage worm attacks cabbage, cauliflower and turnips. Hand picking is best in small gardens.

Wire worm attacks potatoes, corn and some seeds. Fall turning of the soil will expose and kill them.

The cutworm attacks small plants of cabbage, beans, corn, tomatoes, etc., in small gardens dig around the plant which has been cut off. The worm may be found in the soil and killed, or the transplanted plants may be wrapped with a cylinder of tough paper reaching one inch below ground and three inches above.

The striped cucumber beetles attack squashes, cucumbers and melons and the newly hatched worms do damage to corn roots. Sow extra seed. Dust the stems and leaves with air-slaked lime after every rain.

The flea beetle attacks radishes, tomatoes, cabbage, turnips, etc., when the plants are young. Keep the plants dusted with air-slaked lime or plaster, mixed with a little paris green, or similar poison.

Plant lice or aphids, green and dark-colored, attack lettuce, eggplants, peas and beets. Use kerosene emulsion or tobacco water.

The parsley worm attacks celery, carrots and parsley. Hand picking is the best for the small garden.

The squash vine borer attacks stems of cucumbers, squash and melons. Cover the first joint of the vine with earth.

TIME TO SOW CLOVER SEED

Work Should Be Done in Spring and Not Too Deeply—Broadcast and Follow With Harrow.

(By A. C. ARNY, Assistant Agriculturist, Minnesota Agricultural College.)

Clover should invariably be sown in the spring, and, under normal conditions, comparatively early.

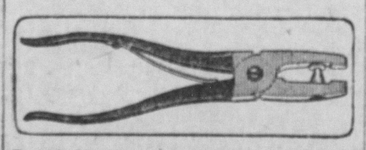

Broadcasting the seed and following with a harrow has been frequently advised, and is successful in Minnesota during wet seasons and on heavy soils; but is often unsatisfactory in dry seasons and on light soils. Clover should not be sown too deeply, and yet it is desirable to sow it sufficiently deep that it will neither blow out nor dry out easily. Under most conditions, either using the grass-seed attachment to the drill or mixing the seed with the grain is to be recommended. Excellent stands of grass have been obtained by mixing the red clover with the grain and sowing the balance of the grass-seed mixtures broadcast. If grass seed is mixed with a drill, the drill should not be run more than from one to two inches deep.

The amount of seed per acre will vary slightly with the method of seeding and the purity and germinating power of the seed. It is believed that in general too little, rather than too much, seed is sown. If clover is sown separately, it should be at the rate of from eight to ten pounds of red or mammoth, from four to six of alsike, and from three to four of white clover.

SCHEME FOR MARKING SHEEP

By Series of Notches Any Numbers Desired for Farm Flock May Be Easily Obtained.

Notching is a good way to mark sheep, and it is quite frequently used. Notches upon certain parts of the ears indicate certain numbers, the sum of the numbers represented by the notches being the number of the sheep. By a series of notches any numbers desired for the farm flock can be obtained. Numbers up in the hundreds involve a rather complicated system, but these are not usually necessary on the farm. To avoid a complex system, each crop of lambs may be numbered from one upward. In this way it will not generally be necessary to notch higher than 100. This system is sometimes used as a check for ear tags in case the latter become torn out.

Punch Used for Inserting Ear Labels—Can Also Be Used for Notching.

Remedy for Farcy.

I have a recipe for the cure of farcy that is so common to horses. I have tried it and have never known it to fail. Here it is: One pound of sulphur; one pound cream of tartar; one ounce salt-petre; one ounce resin. Mix this together and give a tablespoonful in the feed once a day for three days, then after three days give two doses of the same. You will find that it will bring your horses out all right. This remedy will remove all pin worms also.—W. Byorton, Grantsdale, Mont.

Factor in Soil Conservation.

Every land owner who leases his farms should introduce a system of tenant farming in connection with livestock growing and feeding. Long leases with live stock feeding would prove a mighty factor in soil conservation.

TOAD A VALUABLE SERVANT

Its Uses in the World Have Not Been Accorded the Recognition It Has Long Deserved.

Few well-meaning creatures have been more thoroughly misunderstood than the homely, meditative and retiring toad.

Formerly the toad was considered a venomous reptile, but in our day its habits have been more carefully observed and its great value to the promologist and gardener has been fully established on account of its propensity for destroying insects.

We should, therefore, cultivate the friendship and assistance of the insectivorous reptiles, including the striped snake, as well as that of birds.

Every tidy housewife detests the cockroach, mice and other vermin. Two or three domesticated toads and would keep the coast clear of these and would be found more desirable than a cat, as they are wholly free from trespassing on the rights of man as does the cat. The toad is possessed of a timid and retiring nature, loving dark corners and shady places, but under kind treatment becoming quite tame.

Many instances might be cited of pet toads remaining several years in a family and doing most valuable service with no other compensation than that of immunity from persecution.

In Europe toads are carried to the cities to market and are purchased by the horticulturists, who by their aid are enabled to keep in check the multiplication of the insect tribes which prey upon their fruits, flowers, etc.

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES

214 Brevard St., Tampa, Fla.—"Some three years ago I commenced to suffer from a rash on my face and back. Before the pimples came on my face there were a lot of blackheads. It looked as if the blackheads turned into pimples because after a little while all of them were gone and my face was covered with pimples. They were small at first but gradually grew and right at the end of each pimple it was all white. I carelessly picked them with my finger nails, which made them spread, and I soon discovered them on my back. My back was covered with pimples and my face the same way. At night I could hardly sleep on account of the burning and itching sensation they caused. I did not like to go out because the pimples caused disfigurement.

"Seeing the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment in one of the magazines I sent for a sample. I bought some Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I am glad to be able to say that I am entirely cured of pimples." (Signed) Jno. O. Darlington, Jan. 25, 1913.

In neglect there is danger of dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease. Use Doan's Kidney Pills which have cured thousands.

A Maine Case

Mrs. J. H. Bennett, 59 Fountain St., Gardiner, Me., says: "I was in bed four months with kidney trouble. My back felt as though it was broken. My body bloated and I could hardly see. Five doctors failed to help me. When I had given up hope, I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. I was cured and now I weigh much more and am strong and healthy."

REBERSBURG

Charles Wate, who is employed at Lewisburg, spent Sunday at this place under the parental roof.

Scott Stover is at present confined to his home with a severe attack of lumbago.

Our road supervisor is at present giving our public roads some attention in the way of removing the loose stones, etc.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Swarm who spent the past winter at Olean, N. Y., arrived at this place and will spend several weeks among relatives.

Gust Day, who moved from Spring Mills into a house several miles east of this place, has found employment with H. K. Smull, the blacksmith.

The Morris brothers, who had sale on Saturday of their parents' personal property, left on Monday for their respective places of business, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

One night last week the stork was seen flying over our valley southward and soon afterwards we were informed that he stopped at the Allen Guisewite home and left a wee baby.

One day last week Wesley Hackenberg sold his auto to Irvin Shreckengast of Tylersville. Mr. Hackenberg says that he would rather walk than ride in such a balky machine. Mr. Shreckengast came here and after making several unsuccessful attempts at starting finally got the critter moving in the right direction, and no doubt felt much relieved when he reached home sometime that night.

Last Friday morning at 4 o'clock the death messenger called at the home of Edwin Frank and took Minnie, his wife. She was ill only a short time. She was the mother of seven children, two of whom preceded her to the grave. Mr. Frank has the deepest sympathy of all the citizens in this vicinity in his sad bereavement. We hope and pray that there will be some tender hearted woman in our midst who will stretch out a helping hand and take the seven-day-old babe and care for it. The funeral services were held on Monday forenoon and the remains were laid to rest in the Evangelical cemetery at this place. Her age was thirty-six years.

Aaronsburg.

James Musser spent a few days with his sister at Bellefonte.

Miss Tamie Stover spent Friday at the Zerby home, near Penn Hall.

Miss Mary Foster returned from a week's visit with friends at Allentown.

Mrs. Emma Beaver and daughter Belva of State College visited in town on Sunday.

We are sorry to say our postmaster, Mr. Krape, is confined to his bed at this writing.

Cort Karner of Hublersburg was seen at the home of Mrs. Effie Weaver on Wednesday.

Mrs. Koons and niece, Miss Besse, of State College were at the O. P. Adams home over Sunday.

Quite a number of our people attended the funeral of A. Walter at Millheim on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ebon Bower of Bellefonte spent Sunday with their parents, Merchant and Mrs. E. A. Bower.

Mrs. Ira Grumley and son Orvis of Millheim were welcome guests of Mrs. Effie Weaver Sunday afternoon.

The Communion services held in the Lutheran and Reformed churches on Sunday morning were largely attended.

Mrs. John Coldren, nee Miriam Keister, of Centre Hall was seen shaking hands with her old friends in town.

Mrs. Chas. Orwig returned to her home at Hartleton after having spent a month at the home of her son, Walter Orwig.

From last week.

Mrs. Benjamin Hoffley is critically ill.

Albert Mingle and Zwingly Haffley are on the sick list at this writing.

Miss Eva Kreamer of Penn Hall spent Sunday at the home of her brother Roland.

Magdalena Weaver of Hublersburg is the welcome guest of her mother, Mrs. Effie Weaver.

Mrs. Clarence Musser and daughter will spend Easter with the former's daughter in Bellefonte.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Stover are visiting the former's sister, Mrs. Edward Corman at Scalp Level.

Mrs. (Rev) Seigman, nee Young, was entertained for a few days by her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Krape.

Mrs. Wm. Hosterman of Fiedler was entertained by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson Krape, for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Mingle spent Sunday with their son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George McCormick, at Potters Mills.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wagner and daughter of Potters Mills were guests on Wednesday of Mrs. Elizabeth Weaver.

Mrs. Hannah Musser, with her children, Sumner and Susie, spent Sunday with Mrs. Musser's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hackenburg, of Smullton.

Among those who have been sick for some time, the following are improving in health: Mrs. Stump, Mrs. Stricker, and Mrs Lizzie McDowell.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Kreamer and three children are in Boalsburg. Mr. Kreamer, who is a carpenter, is employed by his brother-in-law, Mr. Klinger.

Our burg is lonely since the Selins Grove ministerial students left us. They are highly thought of, and the meetings held by them throughout the week were largely attended.

Mrs. Jennie Sylvis assisted Harvey Mowery to move to Centre Mills. Mr. Hill moved from Centre Mills to the home of his father-in-law, Hugh Wance, and Henry Mowery from Centre Hall to the home of his sister, Mrs. Sarah Lentzel.

CENTRE OAK

Wallace Ilgen has the smile; it is a boy farmer.

J. M. Ream is on the sick list. Hope he will be out soon.

D. J. Vonada has the lime stack done and the fire started.

The Y. P. C. A. will meet with Miss Durst on Sunday evening.

Jas. P. Grove of State College spent Easter at the B. G. Grove home.

James Beck and Wm. Weaver made a business trip to Bellefonte on Saturday.

Miss Carrie Bartges spent Easter with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Bartges.

Weather fine and farmers are busy at the spring work; plowing seems to be all the go now.

Philip Meyer, music teacher from Centre Hall, started his class in this section last week.

Mrs. James Wert while carrying a pail of water made a misstep and fell on the pail and broke one her ribs.

M. W. Wert and family from Wolfs Store spent Sunday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Wert.

Misses Ethel and Mildred Long spent last week at Madisonburg visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Long.

FENCE BUILDING—The undersigned are prepared to do all kinds of fence building, either by the day or contract—G. M. COONEY and J. W. WEAVER, Spring Mills, R. D. 4. Bell 'phone 84-14, Colyer. (o.17.p'd.)

Georges Valley.

J. W. Gobble is on the sick list.

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Immel spent Sunday at the home of W. W. Jamison.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lingle spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Ripka.

S E. Gobble had the telephone installed in his house last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Lingle spent last Friday with Mrs. Susan Davis.

William H. Graham, formerly of Philipsburg, died in the Sailors and Soldiers Home at Erie, where for ten years he had been a paralytic. He was aged sixty-nine years and was a survivor of the Civil War, having served in the Union army. Interment was made at Pine Grove Mills. Mr Graham was twice married and both wives are buried at Pine Grove Mills.

It is permissable to attach a letter to a parcel post package, providing that each bear its proper postage, and that both are addressed to the same party. The letter must not be enclosed in the package, but must be securely fastened on the outside. It is a recent order issued by Postmaster General Burleson.
